September 26, 2019

Dear Colleagues,

It has been an exciting year of transition for NWSA. We have a new office in Chicago and three new staff members, Deana Lewis, Jennifer Ash, and Victoria Agunod, who have done an incredible job putting together what we know will be a stellar conference. Many, many thanks for their hard work to attend to every detail of this conference, from childcare to the quiet room to accessibility services.

I have had the privilege and honor of working with two amazing co-chairs, Dána-Ain Davis and Robyn Spencer, and a wonderful roster of review chairs who were critical in shaping the content of the conference. This year, NWSA had its largest number of proposal submissions ever (over 1300!); congratulations to everyone, from participants to reviewers, who labored to ensure an intellectually stimulating and inclusive conference. #NWSA2019 will prove to be a busy and enlightening conference with 600 sessions, over 2300 presenters, and over 400 moderators.

In addition to our keynote conversation between Keeanga-Yamhata Taylor and Arundhati Roy, we are thrilled to have as featured speakers Cherríe Moraga, Mishuana Goeman, Margaret Noodin, Aren Aizura, Lynn Roberts, Noura Erakat, Michelle Téllez, Thenmozhi Soundarajan, and many more.

The Bay Area is an especially inspiring place to hold this conference given the confluence of organizing and activism around indigenous, LGBTQ+, Palestinian, Latinx, immigration, and labor issues. In addition to panels and papers highlighting Bay Area politics, this year, for the first time, NWSA has formed a local arrangements committee to partner with community organizations and offer locally oriented events. Conference attendees will have the opportunity to attend a tour of the Comfort Women Memorial Statue and a closing celebration at the San Francisco Women's Building. We have worked with writer, performer, and artist Rosamond King to curate an Arts@NWSA program with a selection of dance by the Sarah Bush Dance Project and visual arts (including DJ Emancipation at the Welcome Reception!)

Finally, we have strengthened NWSA's commitment to creating a welcoming space for activists, through inclusion on panels and plenaries and financial support with our activist travel fund. We encourage people who are able to make a donation to support travel for participants with limited resources. You can do so on the NWSA website: www.nwsa.org

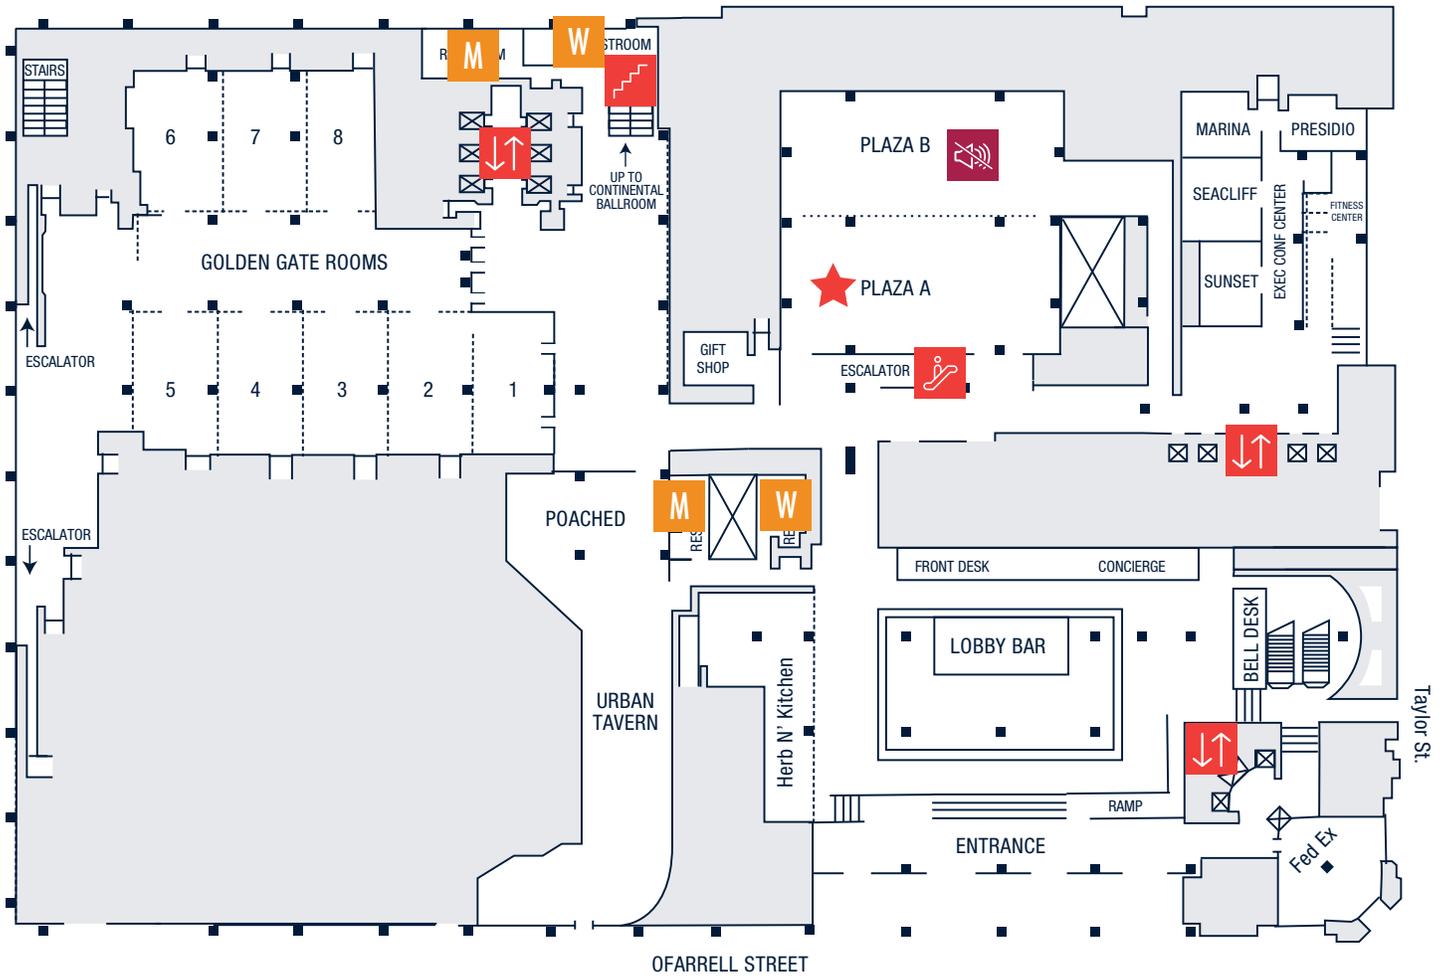

And a sneak preview for #2020NWSA: Our conference theme for next year is "The Poetics, Politics, and Praxis of Transnational Feminism." We hope it will be an opportunity to reflect on the theory and praxis of the past and future of transnational feminism in a rapidly shifting global landscape. The call for proposals will be issued shortly. In the meantime, mark your calendars for November 12-15, 2020 in Minneapolis!

Sincerely,

Keynote Session

KEYNOTE: Reading by Arundhati Roy from My Seditious Heart Conversation with Arundhati Roy and Keeanga-Yamahtta Taylor

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 15 - 7:00PM-9:00PM

Grand Ballroom, Salon B

Arundhati Roy Writer and Essayist

Arundhati Roy studied architecture in New Delhi, where she now lives. She is the author of the novels The God of Small Things, for which she received the 1997 Booker Prize, and The Ministry of Utmost Happiness. A collection of her essays from the past twenty years, My Seditious Heart, was published by Haymarket Books in June 2019.

Keeanga-Yamahtta Taylor Assistant Professor, African-American Studies at Princeton University

Keeanga-Yamahtta Taylor is author of From #BlackLivesMatter to Black Liberation (Haymarket Books, 2016), an examination of the history and politics of Black America and the development of the social movement Black Lives Matter in response to police violence in the United States. Taylor has received the Lannan Foundation's Cultural Freedom Award for an Especially Notable Book.

Taylor's most recent book, How We Get Free: Black Feminism and the Combahee River Collective, also with Haymarket Books (2017), won the 2018 Lambda Literary Award for LGBTQ Nonfiction.

Taylor's research examines race and public policy, including American housing policies. Dr. Taylor is currently completing a manuscript titled Race for Profit: Black Homeownership and the End of the Urban Crisis, which looks at the federal government's promotion of single-family homeownership in Black communities after the urban rebellions of the 1960s. Taylor looks at how the federal government's turn to market-based solutions in its low-income housing programs in the 1970s impacted Black neighborhoods, Black women on welfare, and emergent discourses on the urban "underclass." Taylor is interested in the role of private sector forces, typically hidden in public policy making and execution, in the "urban crisis" of the 1970s.

Taylor's research has been supported, in part, by a multiyear Northwestern University Presidential Fellowship, the Ford Foundation, and the Lannan Foundation. Taylor was the Chancellor's Postdoctoral Research Associate in the Department of African American Studies at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign in 2013-2014. Taylor received her Ph.D from the Department of African American Studies at Northwestern University in 2013.

Plenary Sessions

THURSDAY PLENARY: Centering Resistance, Animating Movement

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 14 - 7:15PM-9:00PM

Grand Ballroom, Salon B

Feminist, queer, trans, economic, disability, and racial justice warriors have been at the forefront of movements for social change: organizing, mobilizing, protesting, boycotting, agitating, sustaining, guiding, collectivizing, re/producing, and challenging. This panel will address how feminist engagements have animated and informed movements for transformation in local and transnational spaces.

[Moderator] Dr. Moya Bailey's work focuses on marginalized groups' use of digital media to promote social justice as acts of self-affirmation and health promotion. She is interested in how race, gender, and sexuality are represented in media and medicine. She currently curates the #transformDH Tumblr initiative in Digital Humanities. She is also the digital alchemist for the Octavia E. Butler Legacy Network. She is an assistant professor in the department of Cultures, Societies, and Global Studies and the program in Women's, Gender, and Sexuality Studies at Northeastern University.

Lateefah Simon is the president of the Akonadi Foundation and an advocate for civil rights and racial justice. In 2003, she became the youngest woman to receive a MacArthur Fellowship for her leadership of the Center for Young Women's Development (now the Young Women's Freedom Center) from age 19. Under San Francisco district attorney Kamala Harris, Simon led the creation of San Francisco's Reentry Division, with Back on Track, an advocacy program for young adults charged with low-level felony drug sales. Simon has been the executive director of the Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights of the San Francisco Bay Area and the program director of the Rosenberg Foundation.

She was elected to represent the seventh district on the Bay Area Rapid Transit District board of directors in 2016. Her motivations for running included her reliance on BART, as someone legally blind and unable to drive.

Simon studied social entrepreneurship at Stanford University and public policy at Mills College, where she will be the 2017 Commencement speaker. She is the mother of two children and has written about the difference in how she was treated as an unwed mother and as a widowed mother.

Noura Erakat is a Palestinian American legal scholar and human rights attorney. She is an activist and writer, as well as a specialist in national security. Erakat is one of six core figures who launched Jadaliyya in 2010 (an ezine in English, Arabic, and French that is an initiative of the non-profit Arab Studies Institute [ASI] in Washington, D.C. and Beirut, Lebanon).

Erakat graduated with a B.A. from the University of California, Berkeley in 2002 (Phi Beta Kappa) and was a UC Berkeley Human Rights Center Summer Fellow in 2003. She received her J.D. from UC Berkeley School of Law in 2005 and was awarded the Francine Diaz Memorial Scholarship Award in the same year. Finally, she completed her L.L.M at Georgetown University Law Center in 2012.

Erakat has "served as legal counsel to the House of Representatives Oversight Committee" and has previously taught at Georgetown University. From 2012-2014, she was a Freedman Fellow with Temple University Beasley School of Law. She currently serves on the board of the Institute for Policy Studies, is a member of the Board of Directors for the Trans-Arab Research Institute and is a policy advisor with Al-Shabaka: The Palestinian Policy Network. Erakat teaches international studies and human rights at George Mason University at Fairfax, Virginia.

Dr. Michelle Téllez, an Assistant Professor in the department of Mexican American Studies at the University of Arizona, has been committed to mapping projects of resistance, exploring shared human experiences, and advancing social justice for the last 25-years. Having been raised along the U.S./Mexico border divide, both her scholarly and community engaged work has been deeply shaped by this experience. She writes about transnational community formations (and disruptions), Chicana mothering, and gendered migration in several book anthologies and in journals, such as: Gender & Society, Feminist Formations, and Aztlán. She has also written for Truth Out, The Feminist

Wire, and Latino Rebels. A founding member of the Chicana M(other)work collective, Dr. Téllez has been involved in multiple projects for change at the grassroots level, including community-based arts and performance. Dr. Téllez is on the editorial review board for Chicana/Latina Studies and on the executive board of directors for the Southwest Folklife Alliance and is the Faculty Fellow for the Chicana student center on campus. The recipient of various awards and fellowships, she is a 2018 Public Voices Fellow for the Op Ed Project.

Talila A. Lewis is a community lawyer and consultant who has been at the cutting edge of critically intersectional thought, education, organizing, advocacy, and litigation that highlights and addresses the nexus between race, class, disability, other marginalized identities, and structural inequity for over a decade. Recognized as a 2015 White House Champion of Change and one of Pacific Standard Magazine's Top 30 Thinkers Under 30, Talila engineers & leads innovative and intersectional social justice efforts that illuminate and address grave injustices within education, medical, and legal systems that have gone unaddressed for generations. Talila's advocacy primarily focuses on anti-violence, decarceration, and prison abolition.

As one of the only people in the world working on deaf wrongful conviction cases, Talila regularly testifies before legislative and regulatory bodies and provides presentations and trainings on this and related topics. As the creator of the only national deaf prisoner database, Talila advocates with and for hundreds of deaf and disabled defendants and incarcerated and returned individuals. Talila co-founded and serves as volunteer director of Helping Educate to Advance the Rights of Deaf communities (HEARD), a volunteer-dependent nonprofit organization that works to correct and prevent deaf wrongful convictions; end abuse of incarcerated people with disabilities; decrease recidivism for deaf and returning individuals; and increase representation of deaf people in professions that can combat mass incarceration. As a founding member of the Harriet Tubman Collective and the co-creator of Disability Solidarity praxis, Talila has spent most of 2017 and all of 2018 traveling the "United States," specifically to exchange knowledge with multiply-marginalized communities; visit incarcerated deaf/disabled people; and bake for "love, life and liberation" under the moniker Sweet Solidarity.

Talila currently serves as a consultant for dozens of social justice organizations on various topics including racial, economic, gender, and disability justice and as an expert on cases involving deaf/disabled people. Talila previously served as the Givelber Public Interest Lecturer at Northeastern University School of Law and as a visiting professor at Rochester Institute of Technology/National Technical Institute for the Deaf. A recent graduate of American University Washington College of Law, Talila has received awards from numerous universities, the American Bar Association, Congresswoman Eleanor Holmes Norton, American Association for People with Disabilities, the Nation Institute, National Black Deaf Advocates, and EBONY Magazine, among others. Talila is a 2018 Roddenberry Fellow and a 2018 Atlantic Fellow for Racial Equity.

Thenmozhi Soundararajan is a Dalit rights activist based in the United States of America. She is also a transmedia storyteller, songwriter, hip hop musician and technologist.

Soundararajan is also the executive director of Third World Majority, a women of color media and technology justice training and organizing institution based in Oakland, California. She is also a co-founder of the Media Justice Network, and Third World Majority is one of the network's national anchor organizations. In that context, she has worked with over 300 community organizations across the United States.

Soundararajan has used storytelling to speak about casteism within the Indian diaspora. She has worked with bassist Marvin Etzioni on her debut blues album, Broken People, which was a collection of liberation songs about people belonging to the Black and Dalit community. Her essay and a photo series about her Dalit experience in the United States was published in Outlook Magazine.

In 2015, the Robert Rauschenberg Foundation included her in their first group of Artist as Activist fellows. She has used this fellowship to work on #DalitWomenFight, a transmedia project and activist movement.

Soundararajan has been involved in the curation and creation of Dalit History Month, a radical history project. Its goal is to share Dalit historians' research, which is a deviation from many scholarly projects which have studied Dalit history without leadership or collaboration from Dalits

FRIDAY PLENARY: Laboring and the Politics of Re/Production

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 15 - 12:45-2:45PM

Grand Ballroom, Salon B

Reproduction has often been associated with childbearing, biology, and reproduction of the human species. But how does re/production re-envision reproduction? What are the multiple ways that society/social organization are produced? How can we incorporate multifaceted stories of how human bodies and humans as social beings are produced and reproduced? What kind of labor is required for that re/production? Crossing temporal, spatial, racial, and national boundaries, panelists will engage with the connections between labor and re/production.

[Moderator] Laura Briggs is the author of How All Politics Became Reproductive Politics: From Welfare Reform to Foreclosure to Trump (University of California Press, 2016); Somebody's Children: The Politics of Transnational and Transracial Adoption (Duke, 2012), winner of the James

A. Rawley Prize of the Organization of American Historians (History of U.S. Race Relations); Reproducing Empire: Race, Sex, Science and U.S. Imperialism in Puerto Rico (American Crossroads Series, University of California Press, 2002); and co-editor with Diana Marre of International Adoption: Global Inequalities and the Circulation of Children (NYU Press, 2009). She has written more than three dozen articles and book chapters; some of her recent publications have been in Adoption and Culture; American Quarterly; Feminist Studies; Scholar and the Feminist Online; American Indian Quarterly; Scripta Nova (Barcelona). She is a member of the editorial committee of the American Crossroads and Reproductive Justice series at UC Press, and with Matt Basso, served as book review editor for American Quarterly. She has held fellowships and residencies at the University of Michigan, University of Utah, Universidad Nacional Autónoma de México, and Harvard University. She has been part of the organizing collectives of the Tepoztlán Institute for Transnational History and the Thinking Transnational Feminisms Summer Institute. Her education includes a Ph.D. from Brown University, American Studies, 1998, and a Masters of Theological Studies from Harvard Divinity School.

Currently, she is developing earlier work on the foreclosure crisis (as welfare reform redux, targeting above all mothers of color) into a broader project on the uses of debt by the US state as a tool of disenfranchisement, expropriation, and empire in the Caribbean: The Future is Born in Small Places: The Gendered Politics of Freedom, Debt Imperialism, and Unnatural Disaster in Puerto Rico. A second project is a short history of separating children from parents as a way of putting down marginalized communities in rebellion or otherwise construed as threatening, from slavery to freedom, Indian boarding schools to ICWA, Cuba to Central America, and from Obama to Trump's treatment of asylum-seekers.

Dána-Ain Davis is Professor of Urban Studies and Anthropology. She is the director of the Center for the Study of Women and Society at the Graduate Center. Davis began her academic career firmly rooted in a Black feminist tradition, investigating neoliberalism and its articulations in the lives of battered women, how it is operationalized in the academy, and the role that feminist ethnography might play in undermining the seemingly ubiquitous tentacles of neoliberal ideology, economics and practices. Davis has sought to investigate some of the dynamics of race and the ways it animates neoliberalism and reproduction. Her earliest investigation of this dynamic is explored her first book, Battered Black Women and Welfare Reform: Between a Rock and Hard Place. She continues her thinking about neoliberal ideology, but crosses over into another domain, reproduction in the highly-regarded article "The Politics of Reproduction: The Troubling Case of Nadya Suleman." In this article, Davis explores how the racial borders of neoliberal governance is asserted in women's reproductive lives. In the last decade, Davis has increasingly focused her attention on two issues: reproduction and race and the technologies that assist in reproduction and feminist ethnography.

Davis has been engaged in social justice, particularly reproductive justice and racial justice. She has worked with the National Network of Abortion Funds, Interfaith Voices for Reproductive Justice, the New York City Department of Health's Sexual and Reproductive Justice initiative and Scholars for Social Justice. Her work on reproduction, race and technology focuses in on a particular form of technology—not those that help achieve conception but rather technology that assists in the completion of gestation, Neonatal Intensive Care Units. Davis' latest book Reproductive Injustice: Racism, Pregnancy, and Premature Birth is scheduled to be published by NYU Press. In this work, Davis examines medical racism in the lives of professional Black women who have given birth prematurely. The book shows that race confounds the perceived class dynamics of prematurity and examines the role radical birthworkers—midwives, doulas, and birth advocates—play in contesting the over-medicalization of Black women's birthing.

Davis' second area of research has been her contribution to feminist ethnography. Her work, which includes articles and two books on feminist ethnography, has reasserted the importance of feminist ethnographic production as an intervention. Her book, co-authored with Christa Craven, Feminist Ethnography: Thinking Through Methodologies, Challenges and Possibilities, has set the stage for a broad-based discussion of feminist ethnographic production in the discipline of Anthropology and Women's and Gender Studies. This book, which exemplifies transformative anthropology, has been called, clear, provocative, and expansive and will no doubt inspire the next generation to think boldly with regards to how to strategically make their research accessible to different audiences within the context of feminist ethnographic production.

Aren Aizura is an assistant professor in Gender, Women and Sexuality Studies at the University of Minnesota and the author of Mobile Subjects: transnational imaginaries of gender reassignment (Duke UP, 2018). He is the co-editor of the Transgender Studies Reader 2 (Routledge 2013) and his work has appeared in numerous journals and books, including Queer Necropolitics (Routledge, 2014) and Trans Studies: Beyond Homo/Hetero Normativities (Rutgers University Press, 2015).

Valerie Francisco-Menchavez is an Assistant Professor in the Department of Sociology and Sexuality Studies at San Francisco State University, where she is committed to transnational examination of Filipina migrants' lives from working as domestic workers in New York City and as caregivers in the San Francisco/Bay Area to their care work with their families left behind in Manila. Her book titled, Labor of Care: Filipina Migrants Transnational Families in a Digital Age, explores the dynamics of gender and technology of care work in Filipino transnational families in the Philippines and the U.S. Through a critical examination of neoliberal immigration policies and market forces, Francisco argues that care work is structured by the state and negotiated through political organizing in diasporic sites. Her research is informed by the transnational activism of GABRIELA, a Philippine-based international alliance of progressive Filipino women's organizations, and MIGRANTE International, an international alliance of Filipino migrant workers. These networks of diasporic and transnational solidarity between Filipino migrant communities shapes her critical perspective on neoliberalism. With organizations, students and community members, Francisco collaboratively crafts methodologies where migrants' experiences are centered as expertise and prioritizes knowledge production in service to advancing political struggle and movement building.

Siri Suh is a medical sociologist with research interests in global maternal and reproductive health, population and development, and feminist and postcolonial studies of science, medicine, and technology. Her research has been funded by the American Association of University Women, the American Council of Learned Societies, the Social Science Research Council and the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development. She has conducted research on maternal and reproductive health with the United Nations Population Fund (UNFPA), the Guttmacher Institute, and Management Sciences for Health (MSH).

Siri's interest in post-abortion care (the treatment of complications of incomplete or unsafe abortion) was kindled during her work as a public health professional with an NGO in Senegal, a West African country where induced abortion is prohibited under any circumstance and the US government has supported family planning since the early 1980s. Her research explores how post-abortion care statistics from government hospitals contribute to reproductive governance. Drawing on an ethnography of the national post-abortion care program, Siri illustrates how medical workers, health officials, and NGO personnel selectively establish evidence about the kinds of women who receive life-saving obstetric care in hospitals; what post-abortion care technologies accomplish in these facilities; and the impact of post-abortion care on the epidemiology of maternal mortality.

Lynn Roberts earned a BS in human development from Howard University (1984) and a PhD in Human Services Studies from Cornell University (1991). Dr. Roberts currently serves as the Assistant Dean of Student Affairs and Alumni Relations in the City University of New York (CUNY) School of Public Health. Prior to CUNY, she oversaw the development, implementation and evaluation of several programs for women and youth in New York City. She is an emeritus board member of the SisterSong Women of Color Reproductive Justice Collective and co-edited with Loretta Ross, Erika Derkas, Whitney Peoples and Pamela Bridgewater-Touré an anthology, Radical Reproductive Justice: Foundations, Theory, Practice, Critique (Feminist Press, November 2017). Dr. Roberts' activism and scholarship examine the intersections of race, class and gender in adolescent dating relationships, juvenile justice and reproductive health policies; as well as the impact of models of collaborative inquiry and teaching on civic and political engagement.

SATURDAY PLENARY: Writing New Worlds

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 16 - 7:00PM-9:00PM

Grand Ballroom, Salon B

Writing as an art, as a means of communication and a mode of performance, as a process of envisioning a new world has been central to feminist imaginings. Panelists writing in different genres and from different locations will address how the written, spoken, and signed word can take us beyond our geographical/spatial boundaries to new figurative and literal spaces through creating new realities. Panelists will also consider how new narratives can help construct new ways of being.

[Moderator] Savannah Shange

is an urban anthropologist who works at the intersections of race, place, sexuality, and the state. She is Assistant Professor of Anthropology at the University of California, Santa Cruz with research interests in circulated and lived forms of blackness, ethnographic ethics, Afro-pessimism, and queer of color critique. Her dissertation, "Progressive Dystopia: Multiracial Coalition and the Carceral State" is an ethnography of social justice activism in San Francisco, focused on how anti-Black and settler colonial logics are both combated and perpetuated in multiracial progressive movements. Savannah has been a Ford Foundation Dissertation Fellow, a Jack Kent Cooke Foundation Fellow, and a Point Scholar.

Margaret Noodin is the author of Weweni (Wayne State University Press, 2015), a collection of bilingual poems in Anishinaabemowin and English, and Bawaajimo: A Dialect of Dreams in Anishinaabe Language and Literature (Michigan State University Press, 2014). She currently works as an assistant professor at the University of Wisconsin–Milwaukee, where she also serves as director of the Electa Quinney Institute for American Indian Education. Noodin holds an MFA in Creative Writing and a PhD in English and Linguistics, both received at the University of Minnesota. Her doctoral dissertation is titled "Native American Literature in tribal context: Anishinaabe Aadisokaanag Noongom" (2001)

Tsitsi Ella Jaji is an associate professor of English at Duke University with expertise in African and African American literary and cultural studies, with special interests in music, poetry, and black feminisms. She previously taught at University of Pennsylvania and has received fellowships from the National Endowment for the Humanities/Schomburg Center, Mellon Foundation, Radcliffe Institute for Advanced Studies, and National Humanities Center.

Her book, Africa in Stereo: Music, Modernism and Pan-African Solidarity (Oxford), won the African Literature Association's First Book Prize, as well as honorable mentions from the American Comparative Literature Association and Society for Ethnomusicology. The book traces how exchanges between African American, Ghanaian, Senegalese and South African artists shaped cultural and political liberation projects. She is now at work on two new projects: Cassava Westerns is a study of how global Black writers and artists reimagine the American frontier myth to serve new, local purposes. The second, Classic Black, is a study of poetry set to music by black concert music composers.

Jaji, originally from Zimbabwe, is also a poet. Her collection, Beating the Graves (2017) was published through the African Poetry Book Fund with University of Nebraska Press and her chapbook Carnaval, (2014) appears in New Generation African Poets box set. Her poems have appeared in Black Renaissance Noire, Prairie Schooner, Bitter Oleander, Illuminations, Madison Review, ElevenEleven, etc. and she has read at the Poetry Foundation, Library of Congress, and United Nations, among others.

M. Jacqui Alexander is an Afro-Caribbean lesbian writer, teacher, and activist. She is both a Professor Emeritus at the Women and Gender Studies Department of the University of Toronto as well as the creator and director of the Tobago Centre “for the study and practice of indigenous spirituality”. Jacqui Alexander is an enthusiast of “the ancient African (diasporic) spiritual systems of Orisa/Ifá, and a student of yoga and Vipassana meditation”. She has received teachings on this meditative practice in Nigeria, the Kongo, India, Haiti, Trinidad and Tobago, and New York. The themes of her work have captured a range of social justice subjects from the effects of imperialism, colonialism, and enslavement with special attention paid to the “pathologizing narratives” around homosexuality, gender, and nationalism. Alexander’s academic areas of interest specifically include: African Diasporic Cosmologies, African Diasporic Spiritual Practices, Caribbean studies, Gender and the Sacred, Heterosexualization and State Formation, Transnational feminism.

Driven by anti-colonial, feminist, women of color, and queer movements globally, Alexander’s works have addressed the fundamentality of (hetero)sexuality to the “project of nation building; the pedagogical importance of teaching for justice; the need for a critical interdisciplinarity; and the sacred dimensions of women’s experience.”

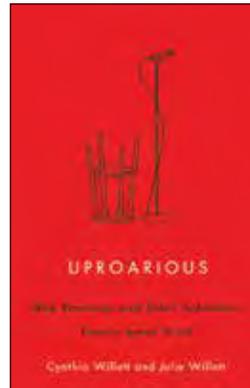

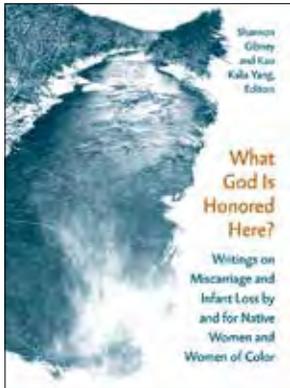

Cherrie Moraga is an internationally recognized poet, essayist, and playwright whose professional life began in 1981 with her co-editorship of the groundbreaking feminist anthology, This Bridge Called My Back: Writings by Radical Women of Color. The author of several collections of her own writings, including: A Xicana Codex of Changing Consciousness, Loving in The War Years, and Waiting in the Wings: Portrait of a Queer Motherhood, Moraga is the recipient of the United States Artists Rockefeller Fellowship for Literature and the American Studies Association Lifetime Achievement Award, among numerous other honors. As a dramatist, her awards include an NEA, two Fund for New American Plays Awards, and the PEN West Award. In 2017, Moraga’s most recent play, The Mathematics of Love, premiered at Brava Theater Center in San Francisco. In the fall of 2017, she began her tenure as a Professor in the Department of English at the University of California, Santa Barbara, where with her artistic partner, Celia Herrera Rodriguez, she has instituted Las Maestras Center: Xicana[x] Indigenous Thought, Art, and Social Practice. Her most recent work, Native Country of the Heart, a memoir, was published by Farrar, Straus and Giroux in 2019.

Dr. Mishuana Goeman, Tonawanda Band of Seneca, is an Associate Professor of Gender Studies, Chair of American Indian Studies Interdepartmental Program, Associate Director of American Indian Studies Research Center, and the Special Advisor to the Chancellor on Native American and Indigenous Affairs at UCLA. She is the author of Mark My Words: Native Women Mapping Our Nations (University of Minnesota Press, 2013) and the forthcoming Settler Aesthetics and the Spectacle of Originality Moments: Terrence Malick’s the New World (University of Nebraska Press). She is a Co-PI on two community based digital projects, Mapping Indigenous L.A. (2015), which gathers alternative maps of resiliency from Indigenous LA communities, and Carrying Our Ancestors Home (2019), a site concentrating on better working tribal relationships and communications as it concerns repatriation and NAGPRA. Book chapters are included in Theorizing Native Studies (Duke University Press, 2014), Sources and Methods in Indigenous Studies (Routledge 2016), Macmillan Interdisciplinary Handbooks: Gender: Sources, Perspectives, and Methodologies (2016), Critically Sovereign: Indigenous Gender, Sexuality, and Feminist Studies (Duke University Press, 2017) and a forthcoming chapter in Biopolitics – Geopolitics – Life: Settler-colonialism and Indigenous Presences (Duke University Press). She also publishes widely in peer-reviewed journals, including guest edited volumes on Native Feminisms and Indigenous Performances.

Building Access: Universal Design and the Politics of Disability

AUTHOR: Aimi Hamraie, Vanderbilt University

SAT NOV 16
4:55 TO 6:05PM
BALLROOM LEVEL - FRANCISCAN B

Building Access: Universal Design and the Politics of Disability is a critical history of how disability accessibility emerged as a practice seemingly divorced from white supremacy and heteronormativity. Drawing on the tools of feminist disability theory, critical race theory, and science and technology studies, Building Access examines how the shifting figure of the disabled user emerged through knowledge practices and modes of legibility that defined disability as white, cisgender, heteronormative, and productive citizenship closely connected to the nuclear family. Drawing on the archives of the Universal Design movement, Building Access argues that design is epistemic activism, or protest politics by other means. Departing from depoliticized models of disability derived from biomedical knowledge, the book highlights how design informed by the disability justice movement—led by queer disabled people and disabled people of color—can build solidarity with feminist struggles against the environmental exclusions of gentrification, incarceration, and neoliberal austerity.

Evidence of Being: The Black Gay Cultural Renaissance and the Politics of Violence

AUTHOR: Darius Bost, University of Utah

SAT NOV 16
11:10 TO 12:25PM
BALLROOM LEVEL - FRANCISCAN D

Evidence of Being opens on a grim scene: Washington DC’s gay black community in the 1980s, ravaged by AIDS, the crack epidemic, and a series of unsolved murders, seemingly abandoned by the government and mainstream culture. Yet in this darkest of moments, a new vision of community and hope managed to emerge. Darius Bost’s account of the media, poetry, and performance of this time and place reveals a stunning confluence of activism and the arts. In Washington and New York during the 1980s and ‘90s, gay black men banded together, using creative expression as a tool to challenge the widespread views that marked them as unworthy of grief. At once a corrective to the predominantly white male accounts of the AIDS crisis and an openhearted depiction of the possibilities of black gay life, Evidence of Being above all insists on the primacy of community over loneliness, and hope over despair.

Experimental Beijing: Gender and Globalization in Chinese Contemporary Art

AUTHOR: Sasha Su-Ling Welland, University of Washington

THU NOV 14
4:10 TO 5:25PM
BALLROOM LEVEL - FRANCISCAN A

During the lead-up to the 2008 Beijing Olympics, the censorious attitude that characterized China’s post-1989 official response to contemporary art gave way to a new market-driven, culture industry valuation of art. Experimental Beijing examines the interlocking power dynamics of this transformation: experimental artists who had trained in and strained against socialist state regulation of expression found themselves navigating international and nation-state mobilization of their ability to confer global prestige. In this ethnography of cultural encounters among artists, curators, officials, and urban planners, Welland analyzes the complex gender politics, contradictions, and exclusions of an emerging art world. Feminist sightlines opened by artists working on its periphery produce a differential consciousness about the shifting role of art—as ideological, institutional, and imaginative—within various configurations of power. Their reworking of socialist imagery unhinges woman from the work she has performed for the nation and resists incorporation into Western accounts of feminist art.

Gender before Birth: Sex Selection in a Transnational Context

AUTHOR: Rajani Bhatia, University at Albany;

THU NOV 14 2019
4:10 TO 5:25PM
BALLROOM LEVEL - IMPERIAL B

In the mid-1990s at the International Conference on Population and Development and the World Conference on Women, the international community of nation-states pronounced sex selection an “act of violence against women,” “a form of discrimination against the girl child,” and “unethical.” At the same time, new developments in reproductive technology led to the possibility of sex selection before pregnancy. Dubbed “family balancing” these practices were defended with the rhetoric of freedom of choice. In Gender before Birth, Rajani Bhatia takes on a global form of stratified sex selection and the double standard of how similar practices in the West and non-West are divergently named and framed. She argues that we are at the beginning of a changing transnational terrain that presents new challenges to theorized inequality in reproduction, demonstrating how the technosciences often get embroiled in colonial gender and racial politics.

Graffiti Grrlz: Performing Feminism in the Hip Hop Diaspora

AUTHOR: Jessica Nydia Pabón-Colón, SUNY New Paltz

FRI NOV 15
9:35 TO 10:50AM
BALLROOM LEVEL - FRANCISCAN C

Graffiti Grrlz: Performing Feminism in the Hip Hop Diaspora is the first academic study on women's participation within Hip Hop graffiti art subculture. Grounded in the stories of over 100 women in 23 countries, Graffiti Grrlz is a transnational feminist urban and digital ethnography that examines the strategies graffiti "grrlz" utilize to elevate their social positionality within a heterosexist male-dominated subculture. Deeming their strategies "performances of feminism," Jessica Pabón-Colón demonstrates how these writers remodel Hip Hop masculinity into "feminist masculinity"; cultivate an affective digital network across linguistic and geopolitical boundaries; strategically deploy alternative femininities to transform gendered subcultural precarity; build transnational "feminist" community without feminist identity; and resist historical erasure by constituting herstories via digital archiving practices. Provoking readers to reimagine the people, platform, and praxis of contemporary transnational feminist movement, Graffiti Grrlz is a groundbreaking intervention in Graffiti Studies, Feminist Studies, and Performance Studies rooted in Hip Hop feminism.

Hungry Translations: Relearning the World Through Radical Vulnerability

AUTHOR: Richa Nagar, University of Minnesota

FRI NOV 15 2019
4:35 TO 5:50PM
BALLROOM LEVEL - IMPERIAL A

The dominant landscape of knowledge and policy rests on a fundamental inequality: bodies who are seen as hungry are assumed to be available for the interventions of experts, but those experts often obliterate the ways that hungry people actively create politics and knowledge by living dynamic visions of what is ethical and what makes the good life. Hungry Translations approaches this deep sociopolitical and epistemic injustice by calling for a mode of relearning that interweaves critical epistemology with critical pedagogy as an ongoing movement of relationships, visions, and ways of being in the world. It argues for just knowledges through an ever-evolving quest that refuses imposed frameworks and yearns for all that is serendipitous and untranslatable in the relation between self and other. The book has emerged through journeys with members of the Sangtin movement in North India, Parakh Theatre in Mumbai, and students at the University of Minnesota.

Making Mirrors: Righting/
Writing by and for Refugees

AUTHORS/EDITORS:

Becky Thompson, Simmons College
Jehan Bseiso, Poet and Aid Worker

FRI NOV 15
3:00 TO 4:15PM
BALLROOM LEVEL - IMPERIAL B

Making Mirrors is the first transnational feminist poetry anthology centering on the refugee crisis in Europe. It began on two continents, envisioned by Palestinian poet and aid worker Jehan Bseiso and Becky Thompson, Simmons College, a US-based scholar and poet changed by months of greeting refugees in Lesbos, Greece. Making Mirrors offers a poetics of belonging—to the earth, family, and memories packed into backpacks. The poems go beyond refugee/citizen binaries and illuminate exile as a forced/creative space. It also offers feminist teachers and students intersectional awareness of precarity’s particular effects on girls/women. As forced migration from the Middle East and several West African countries fades from the front page of newspapers, this collection is a plea against historical amnesia and inertia; the poems are an antidote that reaches beyond despair to renewed action.

Reproductive Injustice: Racism, Pregnancy and Premature Birth

AUTHOR: Dána-Ain Davis, City University of New York

FRI NOV 15
8:00 TO 9:15AM
BALLROOM LEVEL - FRANCISCAN C

Reproductive Injustice examines the roles race and racism play in Black women’s experiences of giving birth prematurely. The author places racial differences in birth outcomes into a historical context, and explores the legacy of ideas about Black women’s bodies and reproductive health which developed during the era of slavery. Drawing on interviews with mothers, fathers, neonatologists, nurses, midwives, and reproductive justice advocates, the author argues that events leading up to an infant’s arrival in a neonatal intensive care unit, and the parents’ experiences of this period, reveal pernicious forms of racism that confound the perceived class dynamics that are frequently understood to be a central factor of premature birth. The book argues not only that medical racism persists and must be considered when examining adverse outcomes, but also that NICUs and life-saving technologies should not be the only strategies for improving the outcomes for black pregnant women and their babies.

From metal detectors in public schools to Immigration and Custom Enforcement (ICE) raids at work sites, carceral practices are facts of everyday life. Policies implemented in the 1980s and 1990s—particularly life without the possibility of parole, mandatory minimums, and “three strikes and you’re out” laws—contributed to a prison population increase of more than 1.5 million people over the last thirty years. As educators who believe in a world without prisons, we deploy the notion of the Long Term to show how the impacts of long term sentencing far exceed prison walls. The loss of family, community, resources and the struggle against targeted criminalization, is woven into the fabric of our everyday lives. Indeed, long term sentencing is perhaps only the most blatant example of the “prison nation,” a term provided by activist, scholar and co-author Beth E. Richie.

Women's Political Activism in Palestine: Peacebuilding, Resistance, and Survival

AUTHOR: Sophie Richter-Devroe, Hamad Bin Khalifa University

SAT NOV 16

8:00 TO 9:15AM

BALLROOM LEVEL - FRANCISCAN A

During the last twenty years, Palestinian women have practiced creative and everyday forms of political activism. Based on ethnographic fieldwork in Palestine, Richter-Devroe reflects on women’s struggles to bring about social and political change. The result: a forceful critique of conflict resolution methods and the failed woman-to-woman peacebuilding projects so lauded around the world. The liberal faith in dialogue as core of ‘the political’ and the assumption that women’s “nurturing” nature makes them superior peacemakers collapse in the face of past and ongoing Israeli state violences. Instead, women confront Israeli settler colonialism directly and indirectly in their popular and everyday acts of resistance. The book zooms in on the intricate dynamics of daily life in Palestine, tracing the emergent politics that women articulate and practice there. In shedding light on contemporary gendered politics from below in the region, it invites a rethinking of the workings, shapes and boundaries of the political.

- Paola Bacchetta, University of California, Berkeley

This panel will address the growing global attacks on women, gender, feminist, sexuality, and ethnic studies as legitimate areas of scholarly research and teaching, which has resulted in budget cuts, shuttering of programs, violence and harassment, job loss, and arrest. Participants will speak about how this right-wing agenda, rooted in racism, sexism, homophobia, transphobia, and misogyny, and the rise of authoritarianism, has had a stifling effect on academic freedom and progressive scholarship and how scholars and activists from Turkey to Brazil to the U.S. have been fighting back.

Decolonizing Solidarities: The Case of Kashmir

FRI NOV 15
9:35 TO 10:50AM
 BALLROOM LEVEL - IMPERIAL B

MODERATOR

- Moderator: Deepti Misri, University of Colorado, Boulder

PRESENTERS

- Mona Bhan, DePauw University
- Haley Duschinski, Ohio University
- Hafsa Kanjwal, Lafayette College
- Ather Zia, University of Northern Colorado

In this roundtable, the five founding members of the Critical Kashmir Studies Collective (CKS) will reflect on our scholarly and activist trajectory. For over a decade CKS has fostered a decolonial feminist anti-occupation framework for knowledge-production around Indian-occupied Kashmir. We will also focus on a collectively drafted statement with feminists based in Kashmir, "Decolonial Feminist Statement on #MeToo in Kashmir." Reflecting on our collaborative feminist solidarity building within and outside the academy, we will illustrate how our attempts to shift knowledge-production away from dominant state-oriented research perspectives have become a part of a collaborative feminist praxis of knowledge-production around Kashmir.

Queer Africa

This panel engages trans-feminist futurity by seeking ways to translate queer theory in a transnational context. Scholars like Dennis Altman have suggested queer theory is irrelevant to the Global South, and that the adoption of the terminologies of lesbian, gay, and transgender leads to a flattening of localized identities. Some, like Ifi Amadiume, have responded to efforts to translate same-sex pairings between Africans as "gay" or "lesbian" with anger, warning that such efforts would be considered "totally inapplicable, shocking and offensive" to those so described. Such concerns are heightened in discussions of Africa, where global opprobrium for anti-gay legislation has often recreated the dynamics of a disapproving West chastising a backwards "dark continent." Yet, activists in several African countries have adopted terminologies like lesbian, gay, transgender, and queer that originated in the West, and used them to argue for their own personhood. A number of scholars based on the continent have also begun to claim the terminology of “queer,” finding it useful in describing the diversity of gendered and sexual practices on the continent, and deploying it to criticize the broader colonial structures which continue to shape the treatment of Africa and Africans. The scholars in this panel propose new methodological approaches that allow us to translate queer across spatial frameworks without compromising the specificities of space and time. They use queer as a heuristic to flesh out the intersections of colonialism, sexuality, and race, and challenge both disciplinary and spatial divides with comparative analyses of settler colonial queerness.

Gay Shame: Gentrification and Direct Action Spectacles of Trans/Queer Resistance

SAT NOV 16
9:35 TO 10:50AM
BALLROOM LEVEL - IMPERIAL B

MODERATOR

- Eric Stanley, University of California, Berkeley

PRESENTER

- Jemma DeCristo, University of California, Davis

San Francisco’s representational legacy as a safe-haven from the routine brutality faced by trans/queer people has been weaponized in the neo-liberal class-war led by the tech and real estate industries. The trans/queer direct action group Gay Shame will discuss its fabulously antagonistic political responses in fighting San Francisco’s current class-war.

Oceanic Indigenous feminisms: s/pacific bodies, poetics and politics

BALLROOM LEVEL - IMPERIAL B

MODERATOR:

- Noelani Goodyear-Ka’ōpua, University of Hawai’i at Manoa

PRESENTERS

- Joy Lehuanani Enomoto, University of Hawai’i at Manoa
- Leora Kava, University of Hawai’i at Manoa
- ‘Illima Long, University of Hawai’i at Manoa
- No’u Revilla, University of Hawai’i at Manoa

When we speak of liberation in the Pacific, how do we embody it? This roundtable gathers Indigenous women of Oceania who, as poets, scholars, and activists, theorize and practice an inter- and transnational feminist politics from the s/pacific context of our salt water bodies (T. Teaiwa 1994; Hau ofa 1998). We draw upon concepts within our own languages and genealogies, as well as the words and acts of Native Pacific women thinkers and leaders who precede us, so as to consider pan-Pacific feminist solidarities and Indigenous nationalisms.

2019 RECIPIENT

Aqdas Aftab, University of Maryland (English Literature)

DISSERTATION TITLE: "Trans Worlding within: Decolonial Examinations of Trans of Color Interiority."

Aqdas' dissertation project, "Trans Worlding within: Decolonial Examinations of Trans of Color Interiority," is an examination of the 'interiority' and "worlding" of trans people of color. During this moment of increasing focus on trans people and trans people of color, Aqdas requires a shift away from an emphasis on the dialectic between hypervisibility and invisibility by focusing on "looking elsewhere" for the lives of trans people of color. Aqdas' project draws from Trans studies, African Diaspora studies and queer of color critique, and also draws from Treva Elliison and Kai Green to ask timely and necessary core questions about the interiority of trans people of color subjectivities. For example, one of the questions Aqdas asks is, "What is the relationship of interior and spiritual worlds with the material and discursive trans world?" Moreover, Aqdas seeks to examine the "beyond" and "elsewhere" of trans of color life as being simultaneously inside the self, and imaginatively or speculatively outside the mimetic "real" of realist artistic representations." Aqdas' archive for this study is varied and transgresses conventional forms, genres, and reading communities to include art exhibitions, performances, and novels. Aqdas plans to analyze various canonical queer of color texts to understand the contemporary ways that trans of color artists utilize and engage the concepts of interiority and worlding. Aqdas plans to use the scholarship to fund my travel to and tickets for art exhibitions and performances by trans of color artists

2019 NWSA GRADUATE SCHOLARSHIP HONORABLE MENTIONS

Rosanna Simons, Texas Tech University

DISSERTATION TITLE: "Documented: Queer Latinx Migrants Refusing Surveillance and Performing Recognition"

This crucial project explores queer artistic responses to state surveillance of migrants who have crossed the US-Mexico border without authorization. Applying literary studies methodologies to analyze government records collected through the 1990 Temporary Protected Status (TPS) and 2012 Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals (DACA) documentation programs, Simons considers how widespread use of the term "undocumented" by both state agencies and migrant justice workers elides the continuous collection of data on migrants, and how queer Latinx artists intervene in and respond to these processes. Through an impressively interdisciplinary approach drawing on Latinx studies, gender studies, performance studies, and queer studies, Simons examines how queer Latinx migrant artists reframe regulatory discourses on the documentation and movement of migrant bodies. These artists, Simons argues, use their visual, performance, video and other art forms to "document the undocumented," creating new and necessary strategies for defining and accessing recognition.

Kenna Neitch, Texas Tech University (English)

DISSERTATION TITLE: "Persistence/Resistance: Gender, Testimony, and Organizing in Central America"

This very timely and exciting project focuses on literary and cultural manifestations of what Kenna refers to as "indigenous persistence" in Central American women's tactics of sociopolitical organizing, cultural expression, and survival in the 20th and 21st centuries. Kenna's study reconsiders and extends beyond the concept of "resistance" to highlight persistence as a key linguistic concept and heuristic. Kenna suggests that persistence captures better the how indigenous and peasant women in Central American deploy decolonial and transnational feminist strategies to challenge and survive colonial and neocolonial conditions. Kenna uses a transnational feminist framework, to examine Central American texts, including Claribel Alegria's No Me Agarran Viva (They Won't Take Me Alive) and regional feminist encuentros, as well as digital media, such as the #YoTambién adaption of the #MeToo movement to reveal the ways that cultural persistence and political resistance are indelibly gendered for women in this region. Kenna would use the funds to conduct archival research at the Stanford Libraries, which contains numerous feminist encuentros and similarly inaccessible scholarship written and published within Central America about women's organizing.

2019 Alison Piepmeier Book Prize

NWSA will offer an annual $1,000 Alison Piepmeier book award for a groundbreaking monograph in women, gender, and sexuality studies that makes significant contributions to feminist disability studies scholarship thanks to a gift from Susan Shaw, Patti Duncan, Jane Nichols, Kryn Feehling-Burton, and Nancy Barbour. The donation comes from the contributor budget from a forthcoming ABC-CLIO encyclopedia of women's lives worldwide. This prize honors Alison Piepmeier, an active member and leader of NWSA whose scholarship examined the intersection of feminist and disability studies, with a particular emphasis on reproductive decisions and disabilities and parenting and disabilities.

Megan H. Glick, Wesleyan University

Infrahumanisms: Science, Culture, and the Making of Modern Non/Personhood (Duke University Press, 2018)

Megan H. Glick's Infrahumanisms: Science, Culture, and the Making of Modern Non/Personhood expands the intellectual purview of feminist disability inquiry, furthering extant conversations in the field around biopolitics and eugenic science while ushering in emerging conversations around the human-animal divide, cross-species contagion, and the "shadow Other" of the human itself. The concept of infrahumanism/s anchors the book, which theorizes the ambiguous nether zone between human and nonhuman (the infrahuman) and the hierarchies of speciation mobilized through the enforcement of this boundary. Drawing from biopolitical, posthumanist, and animal studies, Glick elaborates the critical purchase of infrahumanism/s across a multitude of sites: the construction of childhood in the mid-century parks and recreation movement, the discourse of primate hierarchies in eugenic science, the search for extraterrestrial life, and the twinned panics surrounding queer desire and zoonotic disease. Infrahumanism/s generates possibilities for further encounters between feminist disability studies and posthumanist inquiry, widening the parameters for what we thought possible in the field.

2019 Gloria Anzaldúa Book Prize

The prize includes $1,000 and recognition for groundbreaking monographs in women's studies that makes significant multicultural feminist contributions to women of color/transnational scholarship. The prize honors Gloria Anzaldúa, a valued and long-active member of the National Women's Studies Association.

Jennifer C. Nash, Northwestern University

Black Feminism Reimagined: After Intersectionality (Duke University Press, 2019)

This watershed text ruminates over one of the most important theoretical and cultural nodes of our time; intersectionality as feminist theory, political optic, and cultural phenomenon. Whereas other critiques of intersectionality have focused on its theoretical contributions and limitations, Nash offers a critique that examines intersectionality as a critique, a theory, and an aspect of the institutionalization of gender studies and black feminisms in the American academy. The book is an exemplar of 'loving' critique that both embraces intersectionality for its ability to make women of color critically visible where they would not be otherwise, while also turning the critical lens onto intersectionality itself and the institutional apparatus through which it is circulated. Nash's book comes at a crucial moment for fields and interventions that were once marginal to the academy, but that are now increasingly enfolded within the academic mainstream. This provocative book invites its audiences to envision new modes and measures of resistance.

Honorable Mention:

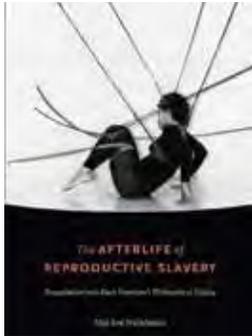

Alys E. Weinbaum, University of Washington

The Afterlife of Reproductive Slavery: Biocapitalism and Black Feminism's Philosophy of History (Duke University Press, 2019)

This exciting book posits that the relationship between history and black feminism is mediated by racial capitalism. Weinbaum's book is a critical examination of the capture of black women's reproductive capacity and agency, and the ways in which understanding this history is crucial for genealogies of contemporary reproductive rights discourses and politics. Weinbaum's argument for a black feminist philosophy of history emerges beautifully, and offers a contribution that coincides with the radical edge of contemporary critiques of sexuality, race, temporality, and power.

2019 Sara A. Whaley Book Prize Co-Winners

Thanks to a generous bequest from Sara A. Whaley, NWSA will offer an annual $2,000 Sara A. Whaley book award on the topic of women and labor. This prize honors Sara Whaley, who owned Rush Publishing and was the editor of Women's Studies Abstracts. Each year NWSA will award a book prize ($2,000) for a monograph that addresses women and labor from intersectional perspectives.

The Afterlife of Reproductive Slavery: Biocapitalism and Black Feminism's Philosophy of History* (Duke University Press, 2019)

In The Afterlife of Reproductive Slavery, Alys Eve Weinbaum offers a nuanced and sophisticated

analysis that traces the continuing work of the "slave episteme" in American reproductive politics and technologies. Applying black feminists' philosophy of history to a variety of texts, from literature and film to historical narrative and court cases, Weinbaum offers new and crucial insight into the operation of biocapitalism's in our past and present.

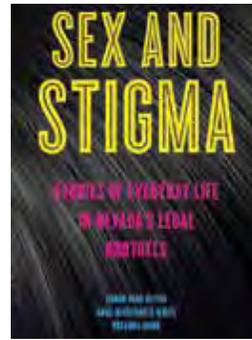

Tara Patricia Cookson, University of British Columbia

Unjust Conditions: Women's Work and the Hidden Cost of Cash Transfer Programs* (University of California Press, 2018)

In Unjust Conditions, Tara Patricia Cookson reveals the hidden costs of programs instituted to change the behavior of poor people and critiques the rhetoric of social inclusion that is based on high conditionality. Through rigorous ethnographic work, Cookson documents women's care work and the high price they pay for receiving aid from the state and international programs. In doing so, Cookson challenges powerful institutions as well her readers to think beyond quantitative measures to truly create a just and caring society.

"Re-Membering the Maternal Goddess: Rastafari Women's Intellectual History and Activism in the Pan-African World."

Shamara Wyllie Alhassan's Re-Membering the Maternal Goddess: Rastafari Women's Intellectual History and Activism in the Pan-African World is a groundbreaking text exploring Rastafari women's experiences in three countries: Jamaica, Ghana, and Ethiopia. Based on extensive ethnographic research, Re-Membering the Maternal Goddess gives us rare insight into the political, analytical, and spiritual thought of Rastafari women. A true contribution to Black feminist studies, Alhassan's work expands ongoing discussions on the dynamism of Black women's intellectual contributions to African diasporic thought. The budding book both analyzes and serves as an example of the anti-colonial theorizing and practice, or 'livity,' of Rastafari women. It is poised to be an integral piece in the mapping of Black women's global politics.

Seeing Beyond: Arts@NWSA 2019 by Curator Rosamond S. King

The National Women's Studies Association (NWSA) welcomes both professional scholars and those whose research is direct action, and whose expertise comes from practical experience. I'm sure many of you, conference participants and attendees, consider yourselves both artists and activists. As an extension of its work and values, the NWSA is committing to including the arts in its annual conference in a thoughtful, intentional way – and I was excited to be chosen as the second curator of Arts@NWSA.

The arts are always vital, important, and necessary – and artwork of all kinds fits the 2019 NWSA theme "Protest, Justice, and Transnational Organizing" perfectly: art can be protest, and it can depict that which we protest against. Art is a fundamental aspect of justice, since it is a key example of the freedom to think and imagine independently. And like scholars and activists, artists and curators can pursue the difficult, messy, but worthwhile strategy of transnational communication and organizing. Along with the overall theme, my goal for Arts@NWSA 2019 has been Seeing Beyond - beyond borders, beyond artistic medium, beyond the obvious.

When those of us based in the USA think about borders and the transnational, we usually have countries outside of USAmerica in mind. But if we recognize the sovereignty of Indigenous nations, then transnational includes the Cherokee nation, as well as Mexico, Suriname, and South Africa – all of which are represented in our exhibit. Transnational also means acknowledging that the land considered the USA was stolen from Native peoples – our NWSA conference will take place on Ohlone land, also known as San Francisco.

In addition to their ethnic, national, and other identities, the selected artists identify as lesbian, trans, and straight, are of different ages, and have different relationships to the professional art world. Some artists living outside of the USA worked around regular power outages to communicate, and a Bahamian sent her work just before Hurricane Dorian hit. Another woman sent her work from an artist residency. The chosen art, as well as the curatorial process of Arts@NWSA touched on many of the same topics that will be discussed at the conference. Seeing and working across borders is often challenging, but it remains necessary and benefits us all.

Just as so many years ago Emma Goldman didn't want a revolution if she couldn't dance, I don't want to live in – or to present – a world in which abstract images, or images that do not include humans, are disallowed. So including work that both is and is not representative was important. The photography, performance, painting, drawing, installation, and conceptual art included in Arts@NWSA reflects much of the range of women's experiences, but in many different ways. Titles such as "One in Five of Us," "Most Reluctant Housekeeper," "I am (not)," and "Armor" hint at what you will see.

The performers included were chosen with the same intentions. Both the Sarah Bush Dance Project (SBDP) and DJ Emancipation are well-known in the Bay area. Spirit & Bones (SPDP) is not only multigenerational and multiracial, it also focuses on women's friendship while gesturing towards an existence that transcends physical life.

Drawing from her Egyptian heritage and everywhere else, DJ Emancipation will welcome conference participants with house, reggae, soul, ancestral music, and "whatever it takes to get the crowd open." Yes – you are welcome to dance! And our collaboration with the Yerba Buena Center for the Arts, which we encourage you to visit while in San Francisco, resulted in the slide show of work related to Bay Area activism that will be projected during the President's address.

Please look up these incredible artists, promote their work, and buy it if you can!

In the space of two weeks earlier this year, we lost Professor Gloria Joseph and authors Paule Marshall and Toni Morrison. These women's work focused on women, but they also wrote about their communities, whether or not those communities embraced them. Their writing remains with us because they did their work in a world that did not always encourage them. We should all be inspired by their example.

Enjoy the visual art and performances here at NWSA, and let them challenge you to think beyond your own experiences, and through and beyond our immediate challenges.

A BRIEF (AND INCOMPLETE) HISTORY OF THE NWSA WOMEN OF COLOR CAUCUS

Participants in the 2007 NWSA Women of Color Caucus retreat discussed the central role women of color have played in NWSA history and activities, and wanted to establish a record of those contributions. Pat Washington and Nupur Chaudhuri have begun that work here. The history of the Women of Color Caucus of the National Women's Studies Association is an inexorable and irreducible part of the history of NWSA. From the Association's first national conference in 1979 (Lawrence, Kansas)—when the Women of Color Caucus drew its first breath as the "Third World Caucus"—to the landmark 1981 Storrs Conference ("Women Respond to Racism"); to the watershed 1990 Akron Conference where over a hundred women of color and their allies walked out to protest the Association's entrenched racism; to the "healing" presidencies of Vivien Ng and Betty Harris (1994 and 1997, respectively); to the 2000 Simmons Conference developed and delivered by the Caucus's advisor/benefactor/champion/mainstay Christina Brinkley; to the 2002 Las Vegas conference where the Women of Color Caucus and the then-newly-constituted Anti White Supremacy Task Force joined forces to agitate for the inclusion of perspectives and contributions of women of color in the Association's 25th anniversary celebration; down to the present time when the Women of Color Caucus and the Women of Color Leadership Project figure prominently in the Association's multiyear Ford Foundation capacity-building grant, the Women of Color Caucus has been a driving force within the Association.

The Caucus has benefited from the courage, persistence, and commitment of many "sturdy bridges" of all colors. Several such "bridges" are listed by name in the above highlights of Caucus history. However, there is a long succession of others, leading from the Association's inaugural conference to the present day, and stretching well into the future.

Nupur Chaudhuri was present at the first national conference, where she recalls "many American women of color and other long time U.S. residents were 'congratulated' by their white peers for 'speaking good English' or having 'a good grasp of the subject matter.'" Chaudhuri was elected that year as one of the Coordinating Council members of the fledgling Third World Caucus, and, in this role, she drafted guidelines for a more inclusive 1980 conference in Bloomington, as well as helped set the stage for the ground-breaking Storrs conference on racism in 1981. It was regarding the experience of women of color at this latter conference that Chela Sandoval would subsequently write, "To be 'Third World' meant... first, to have been de-centered from any point of power in order to be used as the negative pole against which the dominant powers can then define themselves [and] second, to be working politically to challenge the systems that keep power moving in its current patterns, thus shifting it onto new terrains..."

Sandoval's assessment of the dialectic between "Third World" women's status ("de-centered") and their purpose ("shifting power...onto new terrains") captures the essence of what the Women of Color Caucus has been historically and what it strives to be today.

The Women of Color Caucus continues to offer our Association a singular opportunity to look within our own ranks to discover ways to promote broader inclusion of historical, social, cultural, political, and economical perspectives of racialized women in the United States (and abroad). We do this in a variety of ways with a variety of supporters and allies. Recent examples include our work with Program Administration and Development to create the Women of Color Leadership Project, our work with the NWSA Journal to develop a cluster of articles by emerging and established women of color scholars, our work with ABAFAZI Journal to fund a women of color student essay award (subsequently expanded to several awards through the generous contributions of donors), our work with the Anti White Supremacy Task Force to present an annual "Stop Dreaming/ Keep Working" workshop, and numerous other endeavors.

NWSA can be proud of this history of women of color, allies, and social justice advocates who have openly challenged, critiqued, and moved the Association to live up to its mission.

“We must keep Grace Paley's Life Stories always available. Grace is still an exemplar to writers who would tell good stories, and to citizens who would save the world.”

—Maxine Hong Kingston

Judith Arcana's biography of Grace Paley belongs in Women's and Gender Studies, Creative Writing and Literature classrooms. Written during Grace's lifetime with unprecedented access to the writer herself as well as her family and close friends, this edition of Grace Paley's Life Stories explores the roots of her political consciousness and traces her activism as it grew into her work as a fiction writer. She teaches us what resistance means: calling for liberation, peace and justice, crying out to save the burning earth, demanding healthcare for all and the right of women to determine the course of their lives.

“If you want to know how Grace Paley came to be a tireless political activist and renowned writer, read Grace Paley's Life Stories. This book tells the story of the life from which Grace Paley made her extraordinary stories.”

— Carol Sklenicka, author of Raymond Carver: A Writer's Life and Much Love: The Life and Work of Alice Adams
