Gordon Baldwin: Objects for a Landscape

30 June – 22 September

This major retrospective exhibition celebrates the work of Gordon Baldwin OBE, a ceramicist with an international reputation.

Baldwin's work is a physical record of his engagement with clay and the natural world.

This exhibition offers a journey through a landscape composed of ceramic vessels and sculptural forms that offer a special insight into his work.

As Baldwin approaches his 80th birthday this summer this exhibition brings together 100 works from private collections that have rarely been seen, from the 1960s to the present.

Objects for a Landscape is a bold installation, designed by ceramicist Martin Smith, that presents Baldwin's ceramics on open display. It makes the most of Gallery Oldham's stunning exhibition space with its natural light and views of the local landscape

This is a touring exhibition organised by York Museums Trust. The works were selected by Tatjana Marsden. It is supported by a publication Gordon Baldwin: Objects for a Landscape, edited by David Whiting and available from Gallery Oldham priced £25.
